ACCLAIMS

New York Times

"The sprawling Bishop's Lodge, three miles north of downtown Santa Fe, has preserved the simple little white wood-and-stone chapel and rooms where Bishop John Baptist Lamy planted orchards and spent his retirement."

National Hispanic Cultural Center Foundation

"Bishop's Lodge went above and beyond this year with the wonderful assistance that was provided to me and staff, always with a smile and impressive level of efficiency."

Sunset Travel Guide

"Shánah (the spa name) translates from Navajo as 'vigorous, energetic, and healthy'—states of being you might attain through the aromatherapy and hot stone massages available."

Antelope Daily Press

"The resort offers warm-blooded Antelope Valley residents a prime spot to partake of a variety of cold weather activities including horseback riding along the snowy trails stretching deep into the woodlands, mountain hiking along scenic byways, snowman-building and more. "
